U.S. Sees Sharp Fall In Deaths

Biggest drop in 70 years surprises medical experts

ATLANTA | In what appears to be an amazing success for American medicine, preliminary government figures released Wednesday showed that the annual number of deaths in the U.S. dropped by nearly 50,000 in 2004 — the biggest decline in nearly 70 years.

The 2 percent decrease, reported by the National Center for Health Statistics, came as a shock to many, because the U.S. is aging, growing in population and getting fatter. In fact, some experts said they suspect the numbers may not hold up when a final report is released later this year.

Nevertheless, center officials said the statistics, based on a review of about 90 percent of death records reported in all 50 states in 2004, were consistent across the country and were deemed solid enough to report. The center said drops in the death rates for heart disease, cancer and stroke accounted for most of the decline.

The preliminary number of U.S. deaths recorded for 2004 was 2,398,343. That represents a decline of 49,945 from the 2,448,288 recorded in 2003. U.S. deaths ordinarily rise slightly each year. The number of deaths has not dropped this steeply since 1938, when there were about 69,000 fewer than in 1937. Health officials could not immediately say why the number of deaths fell so sharply that year. (AP)

STAND-OFFS | And Then There Were None A police standoff in Oklahoma City lasted seven hours before officials realized the house was empty, KOCO-TV reported. Officers were monitoring a home as part of a drug investigation when they decided to contact the occupants. A tactical team was brought in, and hours were spent trying to reach whomever was inside. Agents eventually approached the house and found no one home; nor were any of the suspects in the surrounding area. (EXPRESS) EyeOpeners | Page 2

Start by Questioning The Nude TSA Worker

A woman flying from New Jersey to Florida opened her luggage after the trip and found a Transportation Security Administration uniform inside, WJXX-TV reported. Despite the uniform—along with various TSA patches and the name tag and number—TSA denies that any of its employees searched the bag, because if it had been searched, the agency said, there would have been a note inside saying it had been physically opened and examined. Rove Surrenders Role in Shake-Up

White House adviser drops policy job, press secretary to step down

WASHINGTON | White House political mastermind Karl Rove surrendered a key policy role Wednesday and press secretary Scott McClellan resigned in an escalation of a Bush administration shake-up driven by Republican anxieties.

Rove gave up his responsibilities as chief policy coordinator, a position he assumed just over a year ago that strengthened his influence over matters ranging from homeland security and domestic policy to the economy and national security. The promotion had left him stretched too thin in the eyes of some officials, as the White House grappled with mounting problems.

With Wednesday's change, Rove will be able to focus more on politics, fundraising and big-picture thinking with the approach of the November congressional elections, officials said.

A major force in the administration from the start, Rove still is expected to have a big voice in policy but not the day-to-day oversight. Those responsibilities will shift to Joel Kaplan, who was promoted to deputy chief of staff from the No. 2 job in the White House budget office where he had served as Joshua Bolten's lieutenant.

Bush, the White House has been rocked by mistakes and missteps — from an ill-fated Supreme Court nomination to a bungled response to Hurricane Katrina — that have resulted in the president's plunge in the polls to the lowest point since he took office. Nervous Republicans told Bush he needed fresh people with new ideas.

McClellan, the press secretary for nearly three years, was the public face of the White House and a vulnerable target in an administration trying to show off new people. He had been bloodied by contentious press briefings and media criticism about an administration loath to give up information. TERENCE HUNT (AP)

U.S. Releases Gitmo Detainee List

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO | The U.S. government released the first list of detainees held at the Guantanamo Bay prison on Wednesday — the most extensive yet of the hundreds held there, nearly all labeled enemy combatants.

In all, 558 people were named in the list provided by the Pentagon in response to a Freedom of Information lawsuit by The Associated Press. They were among the first swept up in the war on terrorism for suspected links to al Qaeda or the Taliban.

The list is the first official roster of Guantanamo detainees who passed through the Combatant Status Review Tribunal process in 2004 and 2005. (AP)

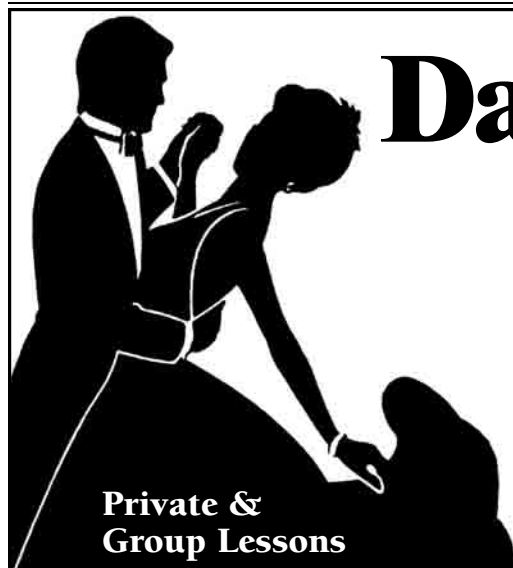

6 Waco Cultists To Leave Prison

WACO, TEXAS | Thirteen years after the Branch Davidians' armed standoff with federal agents ended in an inferno that killed nearly 80 people, six sect members who were sent to prison are about to be released from custody.

Most of those who will be freed over the next two months escaped from the compound near Waco as it burned to the ground on April 19, 1993 — 51 days after a shootout that erupted when federal agents tried to arrest religious leader David Koresh for stockpiling weapons.

The six men went to federal prison for manslaughter, weapons offenses or both in connection with the shootout, which left four federal agents and six Davidians dead. (AP)

Victims' families ask Moussaoui jury to end 'sadness and anger'

ALEXANDRIA, VA | Two relatives of Sept. 11 victims testified for the defense Wednesday in Zacarias Moussaoui's death-penalty sentencing trial. One told the jury her family does not want to "get caught in a whirlpool of sadness and anger."

Medical sociologist Marilynn Rosenthal, whose son Josh was killed at the World Trade Center, said her family feels strongly "something good has to come out of what happened" and family members have endowed an annual lecture on 9/11 at the University of Michigan, where she teaches.

Robin Theurkauf, whose husband, Tom, died in the South Tower, also testified that "the Bible attempts to explain that we are all sinners, all broken people, but all children of God and loved by God."

Several members of the jury, which heard heart-rending tales during the prosecution case from almost four dozen victims and their relatives, leaned forward when they realized relatives were there to tes-

Calif. Woman Diagnosed With Bubonic Plague

LOS ANGELES | LA woman is in stable condition with bubonic plague, the first confirmed human case in Los Angeles County since 1984, health officials said Tuesday.

The woman, who was not identified, was admitted to a hospital April 13 with a fever, swollen lymph nodes and other symptoms. A blood test confirmed the bacterial disease, and she was given antibiotics.

Bubonic plague is not contagious, but if left untreated it can morph into pneumonic plague, which is. Bubonic plague is usually transmitted to humans from the bites of fleas infected by rodents.

Health officials said they suspect the woman was exposed by fleas in her home and that there was no cause for alarm. An estimated 10 to 20 Americans contract plague each year.

Bubonic plague is believed to have been the "Black Death" that killed 25 million people in Europe between 1346 and 1351. (AP)

Police Rescue Trapped Tram Riders

Cable car passengers stuck over New York for nearly 12 hours

NEW YORK | A normally five-minute cable car ride turned into a nearly 12-hour ordeal for dozens of people who had to be rescued early Wednesday after two cars lost power over the East River.

The passengers from one car were plucked one by one and transferred to a rescue gondola shortly before dawn, while those in the second car, at the edge of Manhattan, were taken out with a crane.

At least a dozen of the 69 passengers were school-age children or babies who had boarded the tram at the start of rush hour Tuesday evening.

One young passenger described the mood in his car as almost festive, with people singing and telling jokes. Police delivered food, water and diapers to the passengers while they waited.

The boy's mother, Robbyn Maier said her 12-year-old son, Dax, was going to Roosevelt Island to play tennis when he got stuck. She talked to him by cell phone.

"He's like a trouper through it all," she said. "He's really a little hero."

But, she added, "He's not coming this way to tennis anymore."

Of course, there were problems spending that much time in a cable car.

"Well, there was this one kid who peed in a cup," Dax told ABC's "Good Morning America."

He said he told himself not to look down while being rescued.

Officials were trying to determine what caused the 5:15 p.m. power outage on the Roosevelt Island Tramway, which offers breathtaking views of the city from up to 250 feet high, and is also a commuter route for island residents, said a representative from the agency that operates the system. Suspicious Box Found at Atlanta Airport Security

ATLANTA | Officials shut down all security checkpoints at Atlanta's Hartsfield-Jackson Airport after a "suspicious device" was detected in a screening machine.

The airport remained open while an airport explosive detection unit was called in, airport spokeswoman Felicia Browder said, but passengers not yet screened were unable to reach the gates for their flights.

Transportation Security Administration workers detected the suspicious item inside a bag just before 2 p.m., Browder said. She declined to comment further.

TSA spokeswoman Amy von Walter said a possible improvised explosive device had been detected at the large airport's main checkpoint. (AP)

Iraqis Move to Convene Parliament

Citing Shiite support, al-Jaafari says again that he will not resign

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Under U.S. pressure, Iraqi leaders decided Wednesday to convene parliament in a bid to jump-start formation of a new unity government, stalled for months over the choice of a prime minister.

But Shiite officials raised doubts whether the session — already postponed once this week — would take place Thursday as planned. They said the seven-faction Shiite alliance would meet Thursday morning and decide whether to attend the afternoon session.

At least 17 people were killed Wednesday, police said, and the bodies of 10 other people were found in Baghdad and Kut — apparently the victims of reprisal killings by Shiite and Sunni extremists.

Parliament had been set to convene Monday, but the session was delayed to allow Shiite leaders time to resolve the deadlock over their nomination of Prime Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari for a second term. Sunni and Kurdish parties oppose al-Jaafari, blaming him for the surge in sectarian violence.

But al-Jaafari insisted Wednesday that he still enjoyed the support of the Shiite alliance, the dominant bloc in parliament, and would not step aside.

"As a matter of principle, I think the idea of making a concession is, for me at least, out of the question," he said at a nationally televised news conference. QASSIM ABDUL-ZAHRA (AP)

Benedict XVI greets Vatican visitors on the first anniversary of his election as pope.

Benedict XVI Marks First Year as Pontiff

VATICAN CITY | Pope Benedict XVI marked his first year as pontiff Wednesday by asking for prayers to carry on as God's "gentle and firm" pastor — an appeal underscoring his efforts to unify the faithful while keeping to core church teaching.

A visibly moved Benedict told an estimated 50,000 people gathered for his weekly general audience in St. Peter's Square that his election had come as a "complete surprise" and that he couldn't do the job without their support.

"Thank you from the heart to all those who in various ways are near me or follow me spiritually with affection and prayers from afar," Benedict said to applause.

The comments were in many ways classic Benedict: humble yet clear in showing his priorities.

Benedict's election immediately posed questions about the future of the church, since the former Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger was a polarizing figure. As prefect of the Congregation of the Doctrine of the Faith, Ratzinger had been known as the Vatican's strict orthodoxy watchdog who disciplined theologians and tolerated little dissent.

But many of Ratzinger's liberal critics have been pleasantly surprised — particularly by what they say is his clear effort to be a unifying leader of the world's 1 billion Catholics, and his willingness to listen to contrary views.

Explosion Hits Near U.S. Embassy in Kabul

Rocket fire may have caused blast that injures Afghan worker

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A massive explosion believed to have been caused by a rocket shook the Afghan capital late Wednesday near the U.S. Embassy compound, wounding an Afghan security contractor, officials said.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Lou Fintor said the blast did not occur on embassy property, and no Americans were injured. Staff members rushed to a bunker in the compound after the 11 p.m. blast.

A U.S. counterterrorism official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because it is still early in the investigation, said the southwest side of the U.S. Embassy's compound was among the buildings struck in the rocket attack.

The blast occurred inside the grounds housing the state-run television offices, a police official at the scene said. The building is next to the heavily fortified embassy and the base for NATO-led forces in the capital.

The official, who also spoke on condition of anonymity, said the explosion apparently was caused by a rocket fired from southeast Kabul targeting the U.S. Embassy.

U.S. military spokesman Lt. Mike Cody said one Afghan security contractor was wounded. NATO-led troops in armored vehicles patrolled the area after the explosion.

The explosion comes amid increasingly brazen attacks targeting U.S.-led coalition military forces in Afghanistan, particularly across the country's south, where remnants of the toppled Taliban government have carried out increasing numbers of bombings and attacks. (AP)

Italian Court Confirms Prodi's Win

But Berlusconi does not concede, allies say they may appeal ruling

ROME | A top Italian court on Wednesday confirmed the slim electoral victory of Romano Prodi in the lower house of parliament, prompting the center-left leader to proclaim anew that he had won the overall election and Premier Silvio Berlusconi's allies to say they might appeal.

Berlusconi, who has been refusing to concede, made no public comment about the court's decision.

"Finally the electoral affair is over," Prodi told reporters at his Rome headquarters. "Italians have no more doubts about our victory."

The Court of Cassation, which is conducting a review of contested ballots from this month's parliamentary election, said Prodi had won the lower house by about 24,000 votes — a margin virtually unchanged from the one previously announced.

The review of disputed ballots for the upper house was still under way, delaying official certification of the results of the April 9-10 election. However, the small number of contested ballots in the Senate was not expected to reverse Prodi's slim victory in that chamber either.

Berlusconi's party, Forza Italia, announced late Wednesday it could appeal the court's decision to parliamentary committees and to a regional administrative court in Lazio, the region that includes Rome, according to Italian news agencies. MARIA SANMINIATELLI (AP)

Nepalese Forces Shoot 4 Protesters

Fears of more fatalities rise as opposition plans mass rally on Thursday

KATMANDU, NEPAL | Nepal's crisis grew bloodier Wednesday with security forces fatally shooting four pro-democracy protesters as the royal government attempted to head off a confrontation with the opposition by imposing an 18-hour curfew on the capital.

Two weeks of often-bloody opposition protests and a general strike against palace rule have paralyzed Nepal, leaving cities short of food and fuel and the country as volatile as it's been since the king seized power 14 months ago.

The royal government has responded harshly, claiming Nepal's communist insurgents — who are now allied with the opposition — have infiltrated rallies to sow violence. Police have arrested thousands of protesters.

The shootings Wednesday made it the bloodiest day since the campaign began April 6. A total of 10 Nepalis have now been slain in this Hindu kingdom once known as Shangri-La, a magnet for Westerners seeking Eastern spirituality and mountaineers looking to scale peaks like Mt. Everest.

Details were scant, but officials claimed security forces only opened fire after being shot at by protesters, who were also hurling bricks in the town of Chandragadi, about 310 miles southeast of Katmandu. The government has made such claims in the past, although no shootings by protesters have been independently verified.

Wednesday's shootings buoyed fears of coming bloodshed as the opposition planned to bring 100,000 people Thursday onto the ring road that skirts Katmandu. (AP)

Filmfest DC Rolls Out 20th Anniversary Festival

Filmfest DC, Washington's international film festival, kicked off this week and will show more than 70 features from countries representing nearly every continent. Participating films embody the culture, politics and music of nations such as Australia, Brazil, China, Ghana and India. Highlights of the festival include two film series which explore the resurgence of Brazilian film and influence of Hip-Hop culture. The festival runs through April 30 and includes movie premieres and discussions with directors. Tickets for most film screenings are $9 each and can be purchased at Tickets.com or by calling 800-955-5566. All screening locations are Metro accessible. For more information and a complete list of films, visit FilmfestDC.org. And don't forget to plan your trip at MetroOpensDoors.com.

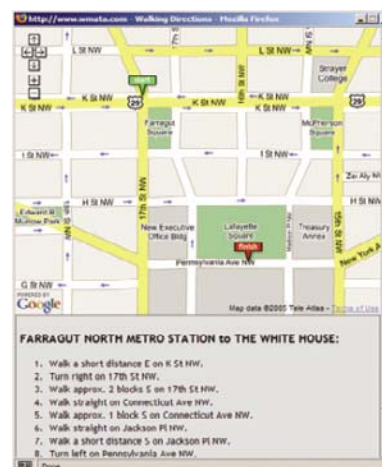

WalkingTown Tour Features Metro Behind the Scenes

Take a free neighborhood walking tour this weekend with WalkingTown DC and explore the city's vibrant street life and little-known historic treasures. A special tour from 9 to 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, April 22, features a behind the scenes look at Metro. Go underground with Dan Tangherlini, Metro's interim general manager, and learn about the city's transportation network. The tour begins at Metro Center station, 13th Street exit. The Metro tour is just one of 52 free walking tours presented by Cultural Tourism DC. For more information, visit WalkingTownDC.org.

Forced Servitude Sentence

Darnestown woman gets jail for using girl as involuntary servant

GREENBELT | A Montgomery County woman convicted of holding a Nigerian girl and forcing her to work as an unpaid servant has been sentenced to seven years in federal prison and will be deported after that time.

U.S. District Judge Peter J.

Messitte listened to a statement from the now-23-year-old victim before sentencing Adaobi Stella Udeozor on Tuesday. The victim had been taken from her family in Nigeria when she was 14 under the false belief that she was being adopted to attend school in the United States, according to evidence presented in federal court.

She was subsequently raped by the man who took her from her family and abused by his wife, according to prosecutors.

"I want to make Stella pay the price for what she did to me," the young woman told the judge.

Udeozor, a physician who lives in Darnestown, was convicted of conspiracy and harboring an alien for financial gain in 2004. A jury acquitted her of forcing the girl to work as a domestic slave but made a special finding that the girl had been held in involuntary servitude for more than a year. (AP)

MARC Train Service Halted After Pedestrian Hit, Killed

Rail service was halted Wednesday on MARC's Brunswick Line after a pedestrian was struck and killed by a train in Rockville. Montgomery County police spokeswoman Lucille Baur said a female was hit about 4 p.m. on the CSX tracks near the intersection of Parklawn Drive and Randolph Road. MARC said the railroad was closed until police completed their investigation and trains were held in Washington until the railroad was re-opened. (AP)

Two Women Die When Car Crashes Into a Utility Pole

D.C. police said two Alexandria women were killed in a car crash Wednesday when the driver slammed into a utility pole in Southeast. Police say the driver, 20-year-old Shareese Bowen of Duke Street, apparently lost control of the car at the intersection of Martin Luther King Avenue and Lebaum Street. Bowen was killed along with 18-year-old Courtlandt Stasiewicz of Phoenix Mill Place. (AP)

Anacostia Hospital to Get Review

Task force will look at whether new facility would be best option

WASHINGTON | D.C. officials are appointing a task force to re-examine a proposal to build a $400 million dollar hospital on the banks of the Anacostia River.

Mayor Anthony Williams said the panel will be asked to determine whether there are other options, such as a less expensive urgent-care or other facility.

The panel also will be charged with identifying the city's most pressing health care needs, and recommending steps to promote the financial stability of the city's hospitals.

The mayor had been a chief supporters of the National Capital Medical Center — a joint project with Howard University to be built on the grounds of now-closed D.C. General Hospital. (AP)

Five Indicted in Conspiracy to Fraud

GREENBELT | A federal grand jury has indicted five Maryland residents in a scheme to defraud an investment firm of more than $90,000, the U.S. Attorney's office said Wednesday.

The indictment says Tonya Tyson, 37, of Suitland, was a sales associate with Ferris, Baker Watts in Washington, and, with the other defendants, conspired to forge documents to transfer money from a customer's account into an account controlled by Ugochukwu Onwudiegwu, 34, of Baltimore. (AP)

Consumer Prices Climb in March

WASHINGTON | Consumer prices rose sharply in March, reflecting higher costs for everything from gasoline to clothes and hotel rooms. Perhaps most troubling, core inflation, which does not include energy and food, rose at the fastest pace in a year.

The Labor Department reported Wednesday that its Consumer Price Index rose by 0.4 percent last month, up sharply from the modest 0.1 percent gain in February. The extra price pressures were led by a big jump in gasoline prices.

With oil prices climbing to record levels above $70 per barrel this week, analysts said motorists should brace for more pain at the pump.

Excluding energy and food, core inflation rose by 0.3 percent in March, the biggest gain since a similar increase in March 2005. This acceleration reflected higher prices paid by renters, the biggest jump in clothing costs in seven years and a large increase in airline ticket prices. (AP)

NFL 49ers Deal for a Second Pick in First Round of Draft

The San Francisco 49ers added a second first-round pick in next week's NFL draft by trading second- and third-round picks to Denver on Wednesday for the 22nd pick in the draft. The first-rounder traded by the Broncos was their second in that round. They also have No. 15, obtained from Atlanta in a three-way deal with the New York Jets that sent defensive end John Abraham to the Falcons. (AP)

Kolo Toure scored the lone goal Wednesday, giving Arsenal a 1-0 win over Villarreal in the first leg of the Champions League semifinals and a huge boost in its quest to reach the final of Europe's No. 1 soccer competition for the first time. Traber Set to Make Season Debut

Lefty takes turn in Nats' injury-riddled rotation vs. Phillies

Traber replaces Ryan Drese, who replaced Pedro Astacio, as the team's already thin rotation has taken a couple of hits in the season's opening weeks. Drese suffered a flexor tendon strain on Friday and will be out four to six weeks. He represents the third Nationals starter on the disabled list, joining Astacio and Brian Lawrence.

Drese's misfortune provides an opportunity for Traber, who hasn't pitched in the big leagues since 2003 when he underwent ligament replacement surgery. The injury cost him the entire 2004 season and he spent 2005 working his way back through the minors in the Cleveland organization.

But Traber is no stranger to success at the game's highest level. In July 2003, he tossed a one-hit shutout against the New York Yankees, striking out five and walking none.

Traber joined the Nationals as a minor-league free agent in the off-season. In 11 innings with Triple-A

New Orleans, he struck out 16 and posted a 2.45 earned run average.

RUB SOME DIRT ON IT: With a little help from Pedro Martinez, the Nationals are baseball's best team in at least one category: getting hit by pitches. Through Wednesday, Nationals hitters have taken one for the team 14 times. The Milwaukee Brewers are second with 10. Though he has missed several games, right fielder Jose Guillen has been plunked four times, the most in baseball. Reserve outfielder Marlon Byrd has been hit three times. Alfonso Soriano has been hit only once, but it was a good one — a fastball to the helmet courtesy of Mets rookie Brian Bannister.

ROAD TESTED: Thursday's game represents the end of a brutal early-season stretch that put the Nationals on the road for 13 of their first 16 games. The team returns to RFK Stadium Friday for a six-game homestand against Atlanta and Cincinnati. DEREK TURNER

Nationals pinch hitter DARYLE WARD

Q&A | Whether it's between the bases or at home in his favorite reading spot, Daryle Ward likes to go deep. The Nats' pinch hitter extraordinaire's 10th-inning homer off Houston closer Brad Lidge demonstrated why manager Frank Robinson kept the 30-year-old slugger on the team this spring. Ward says providing power in key late-inning situations requires some heavy mental lifting off the field, too.

What's the mentality you've got to bring to the park when you've got to hang around eight innings and then make an at-bat?

I think of it as if I'm playing every day. If it's just one (at-bat), I definitely don't want to waste it. [When pinch hitting,] you've just got to find some type of routine that works for you that will keep you loose throughout the game — if you've got to hit off the coach, come in and do some stretching to keep your body from tightening up.

Daryle Ward has hit two home runs in a reserve role for the Nationals this season.

You're still the only player to hit the ball into the Allegheny River at PNC Park in Pittsburgh on the fly. What was that like coming off the bat?

It was a line drive that got over the stands and had a good backspin on it and kept going. I didn't know it went into the water until I saw the guys on the last row of the bleachers put their hands up in the air. I knew I'd accomplished something because they're not going to do that for a visiting team unless something special happens.

"From a young age I knew I was going to play baseball."

What was it like growing up with a dad who played Major League Baseball [two-time American League All-Star Gary Ward]?

It just made me know what I wanted to do with my life. From a young age I knew I was going to play baseball. My cousins said [when I was growing up] 'Man, you used to write your name and autograph it everywhere.' I was practicing that at 11 years old.

What do you do off the field?

I read some books to help me improve myself mentally on a daily basis and get to know what type of mind I have. I like to read books on the conscious and subconscious mind and what you can accomplish mentally.

Do the books help on the field?

Oh yeah. It helps you to believe in yourself. No matter what's around you, it doesn't affect you unless you let it. ... It takes someone with a strong mind [to come off the bench and hit]. ERIC BRANDNER

Braves Top Mets in Series

Hudson tosses a gem in Atlanta's second straight win in N.Y.

BASEBALL | The big question in the NL East early this season is whether Atlanta still has enough pitching to hold off the New York Mets.

Winners of 14 straight division titles, the Braves delivered an emphatic answer this week.

Tim Hudson took a one-hit shut-out into the ninth inning before finishing with a three-hit gem, and Atlanta got another big homer from Andruw Jones in a 2-1 victory

Tim Hudson allowed only three hits in the Braves' 2-1 victory over the Mets.

ry Wednesday over the Mets.

It was the second stellar outing in a row for the Braves, who also got a three-hitter from 22-year-old Kyle Davies in a 7-1 win Tuesday night. "It's good to see our starting pitchers go out and perform the way they did the past two days," Jones said. "I'm really proud of the way they've been pitching."

Jones hit his fifth homer in four games for the Braves, who took two of three in the first series this season between the NL East rivals. The Mets fell to 10-4 — they won their opening four series for the first time in franchise history. (AP)

Feeling Really Down?

Do you have:

- Feelings of sadness? • Feelings of hopelessness, guilt, or worthlessness?
- Thoughts of death or suicide? • Loss of interest or pleasure in activities you once enjoyed?

Or do you have:

- Decreased need for sleep? • Racing thoughts? • Extreme irritability?
- Rapid speech? • Excessively "high," overly good mood?

If so you may have Major Depression, Bipolar Depression, or Acute Mania. NIMH is seeking people over the age of 18, with bipolar illness or depression to participate in various clinical trials and brain imaging studies. Participants must be free of other serious medical conditions.

Compensation is provided for participation in neuropsychological exams and brain imaging. Physical evaluation & research medications provided free of charge.

Alex Ovechkin got plenty of high fives while scoring 106 points in his rookie season.

Caps End Season On the Right Note

Strong finish hints at improvement during Ovechkin's second year

CAPITALS | The Washington Capitals season is finished, just as the team seemed to be getting started.

Victories over Atlanta (6-3 on Monday) and Tampa Bay (4-1 on Tuesday) gave the Caps a 7-4-4 record since embarking on a seven-game road trip one month ago, and a respectable 10-9-7 mark since the Olympic break. For a team with little talent and even less to play for, it was a satisfying way to end a trying 29-41-12 season.

"We aren't a playoff team in points but we are a playoff team in spirit, work ethic, togetherness and some of the intangibles teams and organizations take years [to develop]," a proud Caps Coach Glen Hanlon said after Monday's win. "They played to their full potential. That's all you can ask of your team."

Obviously, there will be changes as the club continues rebuilding around goaltender Olie Kolzig and winger Alexander Ovechkin, who finished his rookie season third in NHL scoring with 52 goals and 54 assists. As a team that shed nearly all of its high-salaries prior to last year's implementation of a cap and employed a host of young players and journeymen, the Caps should have more than $10 million to play with. Although don't expect anything dramatic — owner Ted Leonsis has said repeatedly he intends to remain cautious.

The most obvious area of concern is the Caps' abysmal special teams. The club's improvement in even-strength play was overshadowed by a power play that was the NHL's fifth-worst and a penalty kill that ranked two spots lower.

"We have a very good goalie and every single night we have the opportunity to win a hockey game. If we stay out of the box and [special teams] can improve, we'll look at jumping out to a good start," Hanlon said. "We have a lot of work to do....It's a tall task, but I have confidence." BRIAN STRAUS

BY THE NUMBERS: The Washington Capitals have a 10.7 percent chance — the fourth-best percent — of winning the NHL draft lottery, which is Thursday at noon. The St. Louis Blues, owners of the worst record in the NHL this year, have a 25 percent chance, followed by the Pittsburgh Penguins (18.8 percent) and Chicago Blackhawks (14.2). (EXPRESS)

A German Institution Confronts Its Troubled Past

A Conversation with Klaus Vogel, Director of the German Hygiene Museum in Dresden

TUESDAY, MAY 2, 7-8:30 P.M.

One of the first museums of its kind, the German Hygiene Museum (GHM) was created during the progressiveness of the early 20th century. Swept into Germany's programs for "public health" and "social reform," the GHM became a tool in the racial eugenics movement of the Nazis and later under communism.

This fall the GHM hosts the Holocaust Museum's exhibition Deadly Medicine: Creating the Master Race. Mr. Vogel will discuss why this exhibition is important for Germany today and its particular significance in light of contemporary antisemitism and neo-Nazism.

Go to www.ushmm.org/insights to access INSIGHTStv and INSIGHTStalk.

Free admission. Space will fill quickly; call 202.488.0407 by April 29 to reserve. (TTY 202.488.0406)

Deadly Medicine will be open before and after the program. Doors open at 6 p.m.

Vazquez takes no-hit bid into 7th inning in K.C.'s 10th straight loss

BASEBALL | Javier Vazquez's no-hit bid ended in the seventh inning on Doug Mientkiewicz's checked swing roller down the third-base line. There was nothing he could do as the ball went slowly up the line.

Vazquez sent the Kansas City Royals to their 10th straight loss, pitching into the ninth inning of a 4-0 victory by the Chicago White Sox on Wednesday.

The reeling Royals, who had a 19-game losing streak late last season, managed one run and 11 hits in the three-game series against Chicago. Kansas City's 2-12 start is its second-slowest behind 1992, when the Royals lost 16 of their first 17, and Royals starting pitchers are 0-9 this season.

There was one out in the seventh when Vazquez and third baseman Joe Crede watched Mientkiewicz's roller spin up the dirt portion of the base-line. Vazquez, the newest member

2 Terps Declare For the NBA Draft

Ibekwe, Strawberry won't hire agents, will likely return to U-Md.

TERPS HOOPS | Maryland basketball players Ekene Ibekwe and D.J. Strawberry will test the NBA waters by making themselves eligible for the draft before the April 29 deadline for non-seniors, according to two sources in California close to both players.

Both players are expected to pull out of the draft before the June 18 deadline and return to school for their senior seasons. Neither will hire an agent, the sources said.

"D.J. will return to Maryland," Strawberry's mentor DeAnthony Langston said. "He is doing this for the workouts, the competition."

Strawberry, right, chases down a loose ball. He won't play point guard next year.

Ibekwe averaged 11.1 points and a team-high 6.6 rebounds during his junior season. Forced to play point guard, Strawberry struggled at times as a junior, averaging 10.3 points and four assists. Strawberry is expected to play shooting guard or small forward, his more natural positions, next season at Maryland.

HYPE MACHINE: Singing a Keith Urban song on "American Idol" helped the country artist's sales, but it didn't help contestant Bucky Covington, who was voted off.

A Boost From Fox

Artists who appear on 'American Idol' find healthier sales

MARKETING | It turns unknowns into icons overnight, but "American Idol" isn't just for aspiring singers.

With its unparalleled exposure — the weekly audience is usually somewhere north of 30 million viewers — "Idol" is now launching record sales of the established artists who appear as guests.

As such, it has become a hot destination for music stars. Stevie Wonder and Shakira have appeared on recent programs, and veteran rocker Rod Stewart on Wednesday's episode.

"It's a great opportunity for artists to be on the show in front of tens of millions of people," said Fletcher Foster, senior vice president of marketing for Capitol Records. "There's not a venue like that for music acts except when you come to the Grammy Awards and CMAs. But here's one program a week when you can be in front of that many eyeballs."

And those eyeballs are connected to wallets.

Barry Manilow's "Greatest Songs of the Fifties" soared from No. 24 to No. 4 on the pop charts following his March appearance on the program. Shakira's new album, "Oral Fixation Vol. 2," jumped 11 spots on the Top 40 charts after her hip-shaking "Idol" performance three weeks ago.

Artists have enjoyed sales boosts even when they didn't sing on the show, which began in June 2002, said Geoff Mayfield, senior analyst for Billboard magazine. Lionel Richie appeared as a guest judge during the early "Idol" days and saw sales of his greatest-hits collections shoot up, Mayfield said.

In fact, stars don't even have to appear on "Idol" to enjoy a sales spike. Sales of two Keith Urban singles increased more than 20 percent after contestants performed the songs on the show, Foster said.

"It's just those songs reaching a new audience," he said.

A Training Program For Everyone

Our six-month training programs are geared to both beginners and experienced runners. The full marathon program starts with three miles of running and walking, and then gradually increases in distance. The half marathon program starts with just one mile. Many of our participants are first-time marathoners. Some have never run a step in their lives. But 98% of those who complete the program complete the marathon.

Each weekend, you'll train with your "pace group" – other runners who share your same level of conditioning, whether fast or slow. It's a great way to get fit, have fun, and make a tremendous difference in the fight to end AIDS. It may be the best thing you do this year, and your life will never be the same.

There are four group run sites located throughout the Washington area each weekend. Choose the location most convenient for you.

Guided Fundraising

AIDS is now the leading cause of death worldwide among all people ages 15 to 59. Here in Washington, DC, the rate of new AIDS cases is ten times the national average. The money you raise will allow Whitman-Walker Clinic to provide direct medical care, food, and other vital AIDS services – to keep people alive until there's a cure.

In the past eight years, we've helped 20,000 people nationwide raise more than $65 million to support people living with HIV/AIDS. We'll be there to help you every step of the way. You'll be surprised at how willing people are to support you. All you have to do is ask.

Recycling technique could help your car run on French fries

Its first nickname was "R2D2" after the "Star Wars" robot, but now they just call it "the dog" when it's time to drain the grease at Burgerville USA.

"The dog" is a small, stainless steel tank and pump combination on wheels that the Northwest restaurant chain has pioneered to channel used cooking oil to a biodiesel producer.

"It's the wave of the future," said Chris Wurtz, a Burgerville manager who demonstrated "the dog" at a new restaurant at the junction of Interstate 5 and Interstate 205 in Vancouver.

With the price of crude oil soaring, the restaurant industry — already the nation's largest single employer — could make a serious contribution to the fuel supply if most of its waste cooking oil can be recycled as biodiesel, according to industry and renewable fuel experts.

"It really does hold long-term benefits, not only for the restaurant industry, but for the environment on a national basis," said Hudson Riehle, senior vice president of research for the National Restaurant Association.

At the Burgerville restaurant, Wurtz towed "the dog" to the deep fryer, opened a steel cabinet door, turned a valve and started the oil flowing into the low-slung tank. When he had a big sample, he towed the pump to the back of the restaurant to transfer the old oil into a tall, stainless steel holding tank.

The big tank is fitted with a hose coupling that feeds through the back wall, where a truck from MRP Services, a family-owned plumbing and drain service company, can drive up, connect another hose, and drain the tank.

MRP, in turn, takes the oil to SeSequential Biofuels in neighboring Portland, where it is converted to biodiesel.

YOU WANT GAS WITH THAT?: The oil at Burgerville USA will be recycled for fuel

Good Dog

The arrangement saves Burgerville the cost of hauling away the grease, but it is expected to eventually bring in additional revenue as biodiesel producers develop a competitive market.

"It's a win-win situation for both the restaurant operator, who now has another viable option for the disposal of old oil, as well as the general public, who benefit from energy conservation and energy source options," Riehle said.

Used vegetable oil has been either waste or the stuff that restaurants had to pay to haul off to a rendering company that could transform it into raw material for pet food, soaps or cosmetics.

Rising fuel prices, however, are pushing a switch to converting the used cooking oil into renewable biodiesel fuel as a routine part of the restaurant business.

In California, the Orange County Sanitation District is taking the recycling process a step further by recovering grease from sewer systems and traps.

But the district would like to develop a system that keeps the grease out of the sewer system altogether.

"We look at it like renewable fuel, if we can get it out of the sewer and get it into the market," said Nick Arhontes, the engineer who directs regional services for the Southern California agency that already uses biodiesel in its trucks.

"It goes beyond restaurants to school cafeterias, jail cafeterias, hospitals — to get them to have their fats, oils and greases collected and get them into some alternative use," Arhontes said.

Processing used cooking oil into fuel offers a grassroots alternative to produce biodiesel at the neighborhood and even household level, using readily available equipment such as an old water heater, said Lyle Rudensey, co-founder of The Breathable Bus Coalition and a member of the NW Biodiesel Network.

Rudensey, also known as "BioLyle," holds biodeisel workshops in the Seattle area.

"Bring your own water heater, and we'll show you ... how it works," he said. WILLIAM MCCALL (AP)

Mixing stripes, as Lacoste did above, is only for the bold or imprisoned. Keep it simple, like at right. (Top, $130, pants, $225, adampluseve.com)

Yipes! Stripes!

The best of summer's lines

Fashion is sporting stripes this spring. They are retro, preppy, nautical, fun — and lining up everywhere.

Stripes are showing their colors on everything from canvas espadrilles to jaunty beach totes, retro watchbands, bikinis and 1980s-inspired leggings.

"The appearance of stripes was a trend that definitely came from the runway, but has been interpreted a lot by retailers in ways that are fresh and fun," says Andrea Lui, fashion spokesperson for Old Navy, which built an ad campaign around its striped fashions for women, men and children.

The onslaught of stripes draws from nautical inspirations, a huge trend in spring fashions, says Gap spokeswoman Erica Archambault.

The popularity of stripes with consumers also comes from the desire to brighten spring and summer wardrobes.

"We've done stripes in classic colors, like blue and white, but also in some terrific brights like pink and green and lime and yellow," says Archambault. "But stripes can be a little intimidating," says Jenn Debarge-Goonan, fashion expert for off-price retailer Marshalls. "The key to stripes is learning how to build them into your wardrobe in a way that works for your body type."

Men can get in on the action with this Kenneth Cole tote, above ($35)

Here are some tips:

HORIZONTAL STRIPES MAKE YOU APPEAR BROADER. Avoid the trend in sweaters and T-shirts, if you are big busted or want to conceal a thick waist.

DON'T WEAR STRIPES THAT RESEMBLE PRISON GARB, says Kelly Shelsky, owner of Cousin Johnny sweaters.

Instead, try a pattern of pastel-hued stripes in different dimensions. Mixing up the stripes minimizes some of the problems with traditional stripes.

DON'T REJECT THE TREND OUT OF HAND: A classic, pinstripe shirt is a simple way to wear stripes without looking like you're caught in the shadow of a Venetian blind.

THINK OF SUIT-ABLE STRIPES. Choosing a pantsuit of seersucker pinstripe is a classic way to wear the trend. Their vertical line and thin stripe make them fresh, classic and flattering. And you can wear the suit pieces as separates.

WEAR SOLIDS ON TOP AND VERTICAL STRIPES ON THE BOTTOM. In a flirty skirt or Bermuda shorts, long, lean stripes flatter and elongate your line.

SKIRT THE ISSUE. Some of the best stripes are showing up on crisp, cotton skirts. Old Navy is showing flirty skirts with thin, bright pastels in a vertical pattern. J. Crew is showing a crisp apple-green skirt with a white vertical stripe that would look smart with a tailored shirt. Also look for skirts patterned in stripes that flare out in an upside-down V. The diagonal pattern can be slimming. Try stripes on a boat-neck T-shirt or sweater, a flattering neckline that looks good on a lot of people, especially those looking to draw attention towards the face.

TREND-CHASERS SHOULD LOOK FOR BOLD STRIPES in tunics, and camisoles that can be worn over T-shirts or alone, although it requires being skinny, brave or both to pull off this look. Remember: the lighter the fabric, the more difficult it is to hide behind.

STILL NOT COMFORTABLE? ADD STRIPES TO YOUR ACCESSORIES — on canvas bags, espadrilles and belts. A fabric belt or tie are also easy ways to add stripes to your wardrobe. BETH COONEY (THE STAMFORD ADVOCATE)

Beauty

Get Oiled Up

It's hard to write about fragrance, especially when the only thing you can think of to say is "yum." That's the case with MONOI BODY GLOW II from Nars ($69, narscosmetics.com), a body and bath oil that smells like vacation.

The stuff is made by soaking Tahitian gardenias in refined coconut extract for at least 10 days (a creepy dead flower floats in every bottle), and the result is a lighter version of that sunny, tropical smell you usually find only in sunscreen. The scent did get a strong negative reaction from some testers, who found it too sweet. If you're not a fan of the smell of suntan oil, steer clear.

Cartoon Was Affront to Irish

WOULD THE EDITORS of Express publish a cartoon like the Bizarro cartoon that appeared on St. Patrick's Day if it referred to African Americans, Hispanics, Jews or American Indians? I doubt it. Then they should not have published a cartoon that insults the Catholic faith, the Irish and Irish Americans.

In the cartoon, St. Patrick is wearing the liturgical robes a bishop wears at Mass. The faithful are kneeling in prayer and — in an insult to Ireland's patron saint — he instructs them to "paint thyself green and vomit in the streets." This is an attack on our Catholic faith and the American public should not let the paper get away with it.

—JOHN E. MCINERNEY
Chairman, Political Education
Committee, Ancient Order of Hibernians
Largo, Md.

A Cartoon Double-Standard?

I WAS OFFENDED by the Bizarro cartoon that appeared in Express on St. Patrick's Day. It was a slam to all Irish and to Irish Catholics.

We are constantly bombarded with slurs like this and feel it is mainly done out of ignorance.

With all the controversy that has arisen over cartoons depicting the Prophet Mohammed, I would have thought a newspaper like Express would think twice about publishing discriminating material like this.

Many years ago there were terrible cartoons making fun of blacks and Jews. I don't believe you would publish any of those, would you?

—JOSEPH M. CASEY
Warren, Ohio

Lampoon Was On-Target

I THOUGHT THE BIZARRO cartoon that appeared on March 17 effectively lampooned those for whom St. Patrick's Day is just a day to drink green beer — and lots of it. I felt the cartoonist made a rather effective statement on how debased some of our holy days have become in our secular society. Although I think the press often goes out of its way to minimize the views of Christians in general and, perhaps, Catholics in particular, I don't think that was the case with this cartoon.

—PATRICK GOLDEN
Williamsburg, Va.

Editor's note: Express received a number of letters from members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians criticizing the March 17 Bizarro cartoon. While we did not read the cartoon as critical of the Catholic Church, we regret any misunderstanding or offense that may have occurred inadvertently.

Don't Skimp on the Pork

THE RECIPE FOR GARLIC PORK with tomato and basil included in Tuesday's Fit section looks just like a recipe in the April 2006 issue of Cooking Light. The recipe is quite good, but instead of two ounces of pork tenderloin, I suggest using closer to 12 ounces, as the Cooking Light recipe recommends.

To keep the calories down, share it with a friend or take the leftovers to work.

—AMANDA PETTERUTI
Alexandria, Va.

Secularists Have an Agenda

I BELIEVE ALL THE RECENT HYPE about conspiracies, secret codes hidden in paintings, and new "gospels" is being overblown. The Gnostic gospels, like the Gospel of Judas, are being talked about as if they have just been discovered, but most Christians know that these writings have always been around.

I think all the sudden attention is just part of a thinly veiled attempt by the secularists to try and discredit the heart of Christianity, as they are aware the faith presents a challenge to their agendas.

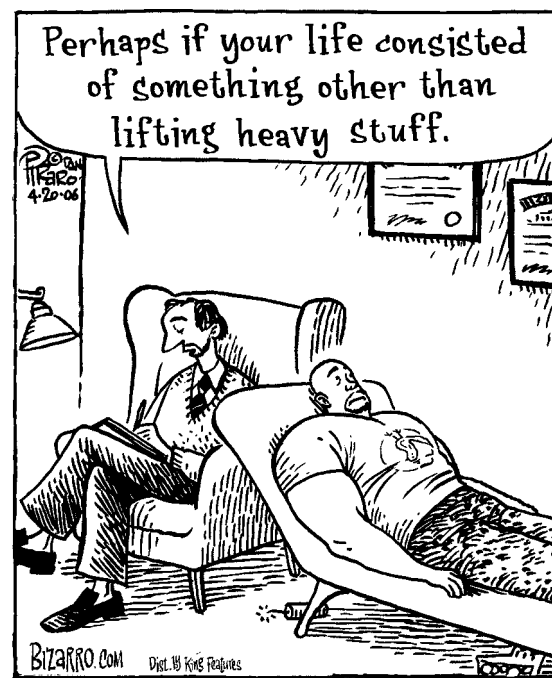

Christianity and the Bible have remained intact for 2000 years and I hardly think a book, movie and a re-discovered Gnostic text will change that.

—MATHEW MWANGI
Washington, DC.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) That which doesn’t fit may be just right for you. Don’t be afraid to head off in a direction that is all your own at this time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) What you see or hear quite by accident is likely to prove most important to you — almost immediately. You may have to swing into action.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are likely to meet someone who affects you beneath the surface. How important is this? You will have to wait to find out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may be longing for the grass that is on the other side of the fence; perhaps it is time for you to tend to your garden just a bit more.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may be rather unresponsive for a while — until a loved one reminds you it’s now or never. Then, you’ll get going.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) An unpleasant interruption at just the wrong time is likely to teach you an important lesson. Once over the line, you can’t go back.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) It’s important you approach the day with confidence and an easy, relaxed frame of mind. Don’t let a past slowdown get the better of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Just when you think it’s too late, someone is likely to come along and offer you a second chance. There may be something fishy going on.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can prove a pioneer of sorts, as you forge into emotional and spiritual territory that is new to you — and others, too, perhaps.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may be quite stingy with your resources, and you may have to suffer the ingratitude of those around you for a time. Is it a wise choice?

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may have more to sing about than others can glean — and you would be wise to keep your little secret just a little longer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take it slow and don’t try to force anything in its place. Your preparation has been meticulous, and you don’t want to threaten progress.

MARK SELIGER

[on the]spo*

* NAME: Hal Niedzviecki
GIG: Author of "Hello, I'm Special"

SOMETHING AWFUL happened to Hal Niedzviecki when he turned 30 — his parents gave him a mass-market greeting card describing him as a "non-conformist." That got the novelist, founder of zine culture magazine "The Broken Pencil" and indie guru thinking about what it meant to be, well, an indie guru. This soul-searching led to "Hello, I'm Special: How Individuality Became the New Conformity," which taps into the appeal of a brand-name beer that makes every drinker a rebel, and TV contests in which everyone is a winner. Niedzviecki, who lives in Toronto but grew up in Potomac, reads from the book on Saturday.

What made you decide to write this?
 A lot of different things that were swirling around in the culture just kept coming back to me. I started to see a lot of mainstream things happening in underground culture and underground things happening in the mainstream, and I was wondering, "What's bringing this all together?"

It seems that corporations define cool, and that's OK by us.

For the last 10 years, I think people have become so much more aware of brands and logo and style and advertising imagery. I mean, Colgate just bought Tom's of Maine; L'Oreal bought Body Shop. What happens to this idea that, "Because I use Tom's of Maine toothpaste I am somehow in opposition to the system"?

It's self-help culture, too.
 Nobody ever says you're depressed because life is depressing.

So if everyone is cool therefore nobody is cool, what's the point?
 Not all of this is negative. A lot of the fallout is positive — people can talk about themselves and talk to their communities and be satisfied; they don't necessarily feel that unless you become this sort of über-celebrity, you're nothing.

COURTESY CITY LIGHTS BOOKS

BE YOURSELF: The writer says that an everybody-wins culture erodes individuality.

So what have you become?

That's the question, of course — what does one become when one realizes that everything in the society is telling them to be something special? I guess for me the realization is that everyone is special, in that everyone has the inalienable right to be who they are.

Is there any eccentricity left?

In the book, I try to see if there are any real eccentrics, individuals, radicals, rebels left. I take a trip to these tiny islands in British

"Everyone has the inalienable right to be who they are."

Columbia, most of them settled by hippie types in the '50s and '60s. The residents actually voted no to hav[ing] electricity and to hav[ing] a car ferry. And some of those people want to go further away — they say the island is getting too commercial!

What will you wear to the reading?
 Well, I have my "Hello, I'm Special" T-shirt. But, you know, when my mother goes to White Flint and buys me pants, I wear them.

Aeschylus' the Persians
 a new version by Ellen McLaughlin directed by Ethan McSweeney

"Triumphant!" McSweeney packs plenty of spectacle in both the show's physical aspects and the forthright potency of Aeschylus' descriptions of the carnage of war; they contain a harrowing beauty that grips the senses." Jayne Blanchard, The Washington Times

"Stunning!" McSweeney's acutely theatrical take on this 2500-year-old play [is] bolstered by the sinewy elegance of Ellen McLaughlin's translation ... invigorated by several actors of particular finesse." Peter Marks, The Washington Post

"Unforgettable!" Mesmerizing performances by Helen Carey, Scott Parkinson and Ted van Griethuysen make this a unique theatrical experience." Faiga Levine, Just Theater

"Majestic!" McSweeney's breathtaking mounting of The Persians has plenty of theatrical miracles." Bob Mondello, Washington City Paper

'The Gigli Concert' tackles big dreams and suspect therapy

STAGE | Playwright Tom Murphy stuffs big words and big ideas into his 1983 play "The Gigli Concert," so much so that it can be dizzying.

But in director Tom Prewitt's staging at Woolly Mammoth, the actors break down the dense prose through even pacing and clear, spirited performances that shows they've internalized Murphy's grand intentions. It's not surprising, really: The same cast and director helmed the Woolly's acclaimed 1996 production.

Artistic Director Howard Shalwitz steps out from behind the Woolly Mammoth's scenes to reclaim his role as "dynamo-tologist" JPW King, an alcoholic English shlub who runs a failing therapy practice in Dublin, Ireland. The high-strung King seems to begin each scene in his boxer shorts and T-shirt before racing to put on his rumpled shirt and pants whenever he hears a knock at the door. The person who's usually on the other side is a character known only as Irish Man, played by Mitchell Hebert. He's a mysterious but impeccably dressed rageaholic who hires King to help him fix his woeful life—and to help him sing like the Italian tenor Beniamino Gigli.

The only other actor seen on the evocatively designed stage is King's mistress, Mona, a fellow vodka-lover played by Kim Schraf, but it's the intense, talky interaction between King and Irish Man that drives the play — two lost souls filled with existential dread and nary an idea about how to get over it. CHRISTOPHER PORTER

SHAPE SHIFTER: Always ecumenical in his musical tastes, former Angry Young Man of New Wave Elvis Costello performs orchestral and pop works this weekend.

Orchestral Maneuvers

Elvis Costello and the Baltimore Symphony make beautiful music

MUSIC | Elvis Costello has been knee deep in virtually every musical genre including rock, pop, punk, new wave, soul, country and jazz. Nothing is out of reach for the experimental Costello, born Declan MacManus, who boldly dubbed himself Elvis not long after the King's death in 1977.

With such a broad palette, Costello's forays into classical are a logical progression in his quirky musical path. Hear for yourself as the prolific songwriter plays three shows with the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra beginning Thursday at Strathmore in North Bethesda. He'll then head up the Beltway for a pair of performances at Myerhoff Symphony Hall in Baltimore on Friday and Saturday.

Few rockers dare to tread in hallowed sounds such as these, but this Rock and Roll Hall of Famer is unlike most rockers. The first part of the Maryland gigs will feature the bespectacled performer and the BSO drawing from his first full-length orchestra work, "Il Sogno" ("The Dream"), based on Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Diametrically opposed to a populist project like Metallica and the San Francisco Orchestra, these pieces were originally composed for an Italian ballet company. (Take that, Lars Ulrich!) They embody a wide range of styles, including R&B, jazz, folk and bluegrass.

After an intermission, Costello will return to the stage with longtime keyboardist Steve Nieve and play a host of his pop-oriented fare with the BSO.

With a deep appreciation for the genre, "Il Sogno" isn't Costello's first experiment with classical music. He collaborated with the British-based Brodsky Quartet in 1993 and even penned an opera based on Hans Christian Andersen's life for Denmark's Royal Theater that debuted last year.

Also among his wildly varied discs is an album with his wife, jazz pianist/singer Diana Krall — 2004's velvety "The Girl in the Other Room."

Among Costello's pop tunes on display should be a re-working of his early hit "Watching The Detectives." He revised the song in 2004 with the 52-piece Metropole Orkest from the Netherlands and issued it on CD this year. While the original bounces with a pop-reggae feel, the orchestral version utilizes breezy, big band melodies that heartily swing.

The updated release is radically different and the only constant is Costello's nasally wail — something few would characterize as smooth, but most would agree remains gratifyingly imperfect.

Not unlike the man himself, who's easily among popular music's most courageous and intriguing performers.

Rainer Maria matures from scrappy indie rock to polished pop

MUSIC | Rainer Maria is practically a classic-rock band at this point — well, classic emo rock.

It will be 11 years in October since bassist Caithlin De Marrais, guitarist Kyle Fischer and drummer William Kuehn took their name from German poet Rainer Maria Rilke and formed a band in Madison, Wis. And they've never looked back.

"We really love it," Kuehn said. "There's only three of us so it makes it easier, and we're really great friends. I see no problem with living that lifestyle. Maybe some musicians do, but we all enjoy it so much. After 11 years everything is just second nature — being in a band, being on the road — we don't even think about it."

Rainer Maria is going on a long tour to support "Catastrophe Keeps Us Together," its fifth studio album and first CD since 2004's live compilation "Anyone in Love With You (Already Knows)." The new disc is the band's most melodic and accessible album to date, and after hearing the title track and the soaring ballad "Already Lost" it's easy to imagine that this once-scrappy trio is headed for a musical guest slot on "The O.C."

While "Catastrophe" is brimming with catchy songs, its primary strength comes from vocalist De Marrais, whose pipes have evolved from a passionate yelp into an instrument of beauty and power.

Fischer usually sings a few songs with De Marrais, but on "Catastrophe" it's her voice alone. "Kyle's really been focusing on his guitar-playing for the last two records," Kuehn said. "That's become his main focus and he's let Caithlin do a lot of the vocals. A lot of the lyrics were almost always written by Caithlin, especially the last two records."

"It just seemed natural for her to sing them. And Caithlin's voice ... is strong enough now where she can take the leads and it's more than enough. It's just the perfect voice for this band." CHRISTOPHER PORTER

A Jack of All Tirades

Lewis Black finds much to mock in the state of the union

COMEDY | Beware of Lewis Black's flying fingers. The highly agitated comedian plays back-to-back shows Friday at the Warner Theater and you can bet he'll become exasperated enough to dart his hands like a kung fu practitioner. The gigs will be taped for an upcoming HBO special that finds the politically savvy funnyman in D.C., where he's bound to gather endless material.

Black grew up in Silver Spring. He struggled for years as a playwright and theater manager, before landing a spot on Comedy Central's "The Daily Show" in 1996. His career erupted thanks to memorable "Back in Black" segments — brief, spirited rants where someone's certain to be blasted as an idiot, maybe even Black himself.

Not only does Black perform hundreds of stand-up comedy dates a year, he's completed acting gigs for Bob Saget's upcoming spoof "Farce of the Penguins" and "Man of the Year" alongside Robin Williams. Nearly anything can irritate Black, and he's never bashful when intensely spewing an opinion.

From the president to God, nothing is off limits. In fact, Black's official Web site dubs the comedian "America's foremost commentator on everything." But it's his fingers that really do the talking. CRAIG SMITH

Tarnished TV 'Idol'

A new satire sends up TV talent shows and a clueless president

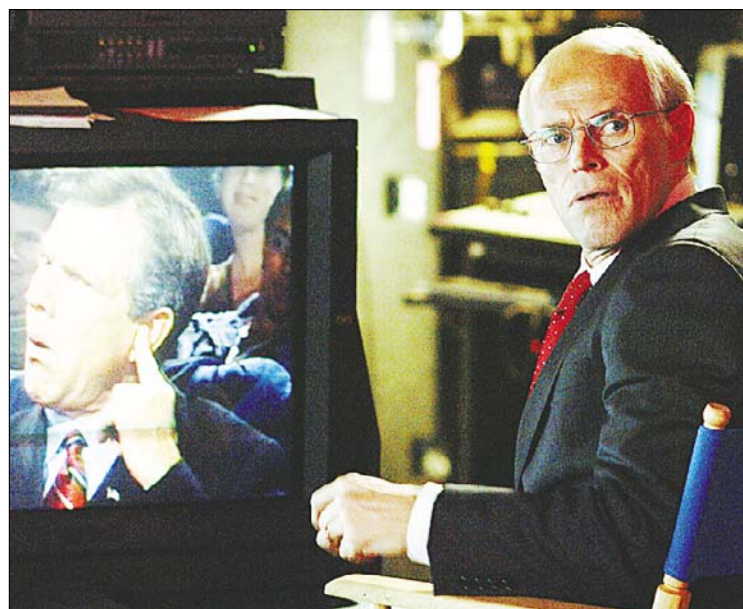

RIPE TARGET | Paul Weitz's "American Dreamz" pokes fun at the public's obsession with a TV show that affords ambitious unknowns instant fame. In it, a clueless U.S. president who decides to get back in touch with reality does so by becoming a guest judge on the show, where he becomes the target of an assassination plot.

Willem Dafoe, 50, is almost unrecognizable as the paunchy, balding political puppet-master behind Dennis Quaid's President Staton. But changing his appearance is nothing new for this performer — he's played characters as diverse as Jesus and the Green Goblin.

Is your character based on Dick Cheney or Karl Rove?

It's a mixture of the two. I think the character looks quite a bit like Cheney, but I didn't intend to look so much like him. [The character's] probably more Karl Rove, though.

PULLING STRINGS: Willem Dafoe plays a composite of White House manipulators.

The truth is, while a lot of references are thinly veiled in this, that particular character is sort of an invention.

Do you feel our times are almost satire-proof?

The political climate and pop culture — they satirize themselves. ... It doesn't present revelations politically to me, but it uses humor to approach things that we sort of know from a different angle and it helps loosen up the discourse.

What was it like working with Paul Weitz?

It's always nice when the writer is the director because if he sees something he can move on it. There's great flexibility and he likes to play around. A lot of what we improvised and invented didn't make it into the movie, but what it did was loosen up the other parts. It creates an atmosphere and a fluidity that you don't have if you are just working with the written text.

Do you watch "American Idol"?

I've never watched it. I've seen reality shows where these beautiful young kids were eating spiders.

"Fear Factor?"

Yeah. They're related to those outrageous talk shows like "Jerry Springer," to me. There was a period where I was quite fascinated with those.

Was there a favorite episode?

They're all the same. ANGELA DAWSON (ENTERTAINMENT NEWS WIRE)

surf/exotica revival

MUSIC | Dominic Carpin looks great in a leopardskin loincloth. This cannot be said of just every songwriter and surf-a-billy guitarist. And that is why there is only one band known as the Cashmere Jungle Lords.

This singular ability to rock a loincloth may also contribute to his band's perseverance after 23 years of Jungle Lordship. For these survivors of the Richmond punk scene — who play Iota this Saturday — it's a free pass to sidestep every absurd trend that the music industry can foist on the public.

Historically, record execs have professed befuddlement at the Jungle Lords' stylistic promiscuity. It's a gumbo of surf-rock, loungey exotica, explosive punk and roots music. Their kooky energy landed Jungle Lords songs all over the soundtrack of MTV's "The Real World." The forthcoming "Bloodstone Follies" is only the second full-length album since the band formed in 1983.

Carpin found his inspiration in the burgeoning burlesque revival. "I saw the Pontani Sisters dance with Los Straitjackets," he said, referring in the latter case to the surf-rock combo known for sporting Mexican wrestling masks onstage. "We're talking white go-go boots, ballerina outfits, feather fans and all that stuff. It got me thinking about the Ziegfeld follies." Pretty soon he had a concept album exploring human folly, in all its definitions.

With two decades of tour she-nanigans under their leopard-print belts, folly is a concept the Jungle Lords know a bit about. Said Carpin, "One time we played New Orleans," home of the recent FEMA Follies. "This cat scratched our bass player and gave him cat scratch fever — like, the real thing. All your lymph nodes in your armpits swell real bad. They had to lance his armpit and stuff gauze in it. I was instructed by the physician that every 24 hours I had to remove the gauze and redress the wound. It was excruciating for him. On our way back he resorted to drinking shots of whiskey, like in an old Western."

Ted Nugent — originator of the rock loincloth, composer of the timeless classic "Cat Scratch Fever," and teetotaler — would probably understand. BOB MASSEY

Stephen Marley has 'Got Music' for the newest generation

MUSIC | Stephen Marley, the second son of Bob and Rita, was a member of the Melody Makers along with older brother Ziggy and sisters Cedella and Sharon. While he's produced records for his brothers Julian, Ky-Mani and Damian, the 34-year-old Stephen — who can sound a lot like his Pops — has never released a solo album.

His debut, "Got Music?," was supposed to come out last year, but it was put on hold — no, not because of the terrible title but so he and Damian could finish the smash "Welcome to Jamrock" CD.

Now scheduled for a September release, Marley decided to change the record's name to "Mind Control" because, "Where I am today is different from where I was last year in terms of my vibe, my mood," Marley said. "Last year I was in a 'Got Music?' vibe — just music. This year I'm in a more militant vibe." Marley's adding a few new songs and remixing others to make the roots-reggae album "more raw."

He and Ky-Mani are doing a brief tour to work out some new songs and arrangements from their forthcoming CDs and they'll dip into Dad's catalog, too. But with Damian having the family's biggest hit since the Melody Maker's "Tomorrow People" in 1989, some sibling rivalry must take place, right? "No, no," laughed

Marley. "Maybe if we were all the same age we'd have that kind of sibling rivalry. But we're all a good age apart so that you respect the wisdom of your peers, of your older brothers."

LIVE ROCK | TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY

ALL PUNCH, NO PAUNCH: Memphis' Lucero couldn't be from anywhere else. The photogenic indie darlings make Southern rock the new-fashioned way — without the gut, more punk than blues, just as hangdog as a boy can be. The quartet hits the Black Cat on Friday night to bring a little grit and hot sauce to this Mason-Dixon neverland.

When your Mexican Hairless develops delusional tendencies and chew-toy-triggered hallucinations, well ... that's a tall order. But for most canine-behavior issues the host of National Geographic's "Dog Whisperer" is the premier pooch psychologist. Mostly, Millan's therapy theories, as discussed in his new book, "Cesar's Way," are centered on the idea of the owner establishing him- or herself as "pack leader," i.e., don't take no guff from your mutt. Ask Tom

I am looking for a fun, hip place to take my husband out for his 30th birthday. I've looked into Komi and Oceanaire but they are a bit too pricey for us. He is an adventurous eater and loves wine, so any kind of cuisine will do. Can you recommend a couple of places that won't break the bank?

Hip and fun and relatively easy on the budget: Two Amys in Northwest D.C. (sit at the wine bar); Bangkok 54 in Arlington; Spices in Cleveland Park; The bar facing the tortilla makers at Oyamel in Arlington; La Flor de la Canela in Gaithersburg.

→ Two Amys, 3715 Macomb St. NW; 202-885-5700.

→ Bangkok 54, 2919 Columbia Pike, Arlington; 703-521-4070.

→ Spices Asian Restaurant & Sushi Bar, 3333-A Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-686-3833. (Cleveland Park)

→ Oyamel Cocina Mexicana, 2250 Crystal Dr.; 703-413-2288. (Crystal City)

→ La Flor de la Canela, 117 N Frederick Ave., Gaithersburg, Md.; 301-519-9100.

Willard Room director Francisco Niero serves up the hotel's Caesar salad.

I am looking for a place with outdoor seating for a birthday dinner. It should offer good wine, seating for seven people and preferably be located downtown, on Capitol Hill or Dupont/U Street. Any suggestions?

Try Bombay Club, Busboys and Poets, Hank's Oyster Bar, Montmartre, Sette Osteria or the always-lovely garden at Tabard Inn.

→ Bombay Club, 815 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-659-3727. (Farragut West)

→ Busboys and Poets, 2021 14th St. NW; 202-387-7638. (U St.-Cardozo)

→ Hank's Oyster Bar, 1624 Q St. NW; 202-462-4265. (Dupont Circle)

→ Montmartre, 327 7th St. SE; 202-544-1244. (Eastern Market)

→ Sette Osteria, 1666 Connecticut Ave., NW; 202-483-3070. (Dupont Circle)

→ Tabard Inn, 1739 N St. NW; 202-

331-8528. (Dupont Circle)

At Charlie Chiang's in Shirlington a few nights ago, my dining party saw a waitress pour wine from a glass back into the bottle. She used a funnel, which I'm guessing implies this is standard practice rather than a one-time occurrence.

You're kidding. Lesson to diners at Charlie Chang's: Order wine by the bottle only — and make sure the bottle is wearing a tight cork!

→ 4060 S. 28th St., Arlington, Va.; 703-671-4900.

What do you consider the best place(s) to order Caesar salad?

One of the tastiest, and priciest — the Willard Room's $16 model, with a (gasp) minimum two-person order requirement. One of the more inventive: Simply Home's Asian-style salad, made with lemongrass in its dressing.

→ The Willard Room, 1401 Pennsylvania Ave. NW; 202-637-7440. (Metro Center)

→ Simply Home, 1410 U St. NW; 202-232-8424. (U St.-Cardozo)

Washington Post Sunday Magazine columnist TOM SIETSEMA talks restaurants Wednesdays at 11 a.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

Going Out | Cheap Dates

While spring isn't really known as a time to celebrate wine, restaurants will always find a way to draw in customers, whether through various standing wine discount nights (like Clyde's half-price bottle night on Sundays) or other less-frequent wine specials.

Two restaurants are either gearing up to showcase or are already offering the best of their regular or special offerings. At Dino in Cleveland Park, diners who come for dinner on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights and spend at least $20 per person on food will be able to get a 33-percent discount on any bottle that's more than $50. If you can't figure out the math, we'll tell you now that's a good deal — Dino's wine list is highly regarded. Two hundred bottles fall under this discount, which will run through Memorial Day. Cleveland Parkers, already upset that their neighborhood Italian restaurant is being flooded with outsiders, will likely be further peeved.

Dino in Cleveland Park offers its fine wines for a discount some weekdays.

And if you thought "Greek wine" means nothing but retsina (that Pine Sol-icious white table wine), think again. At Zaytinya downtown, April 30 is the day to explore what Greece's wine-producing regions can offer. A walk-around wine tasting of 25 to 30 wines will start at 4 p.m. and last until 6 p.m. (Zaytinya recommends that you secure a dinner reservation to suck up all the vino.) But if you want more, more, more, the Greek wines will be available for purchase at 25 percent off the regular price.

→ Dino, 3435 Connecticut Ave. NW; 202-686-2966. (Cleveland Park)

→ Zaytinya, 701 9th St. NW; 202-638-0800. (Gallery Place-Chinatown)

CHANGING OF THE GUARD

New Faces in Ardeo/ Bardeo's Kitchen

Christopher Bradley, the recently appointed executive chef at Ashok Bajaj's Cleveland Park duo Ardeo and Bardeo, has tapped a new pastry chef, Susan Kolman. Under Bradley's new leadership, the restaurants have been remaking their menus, so expect some new and interesting creations from Kolman come dessert time. Bradley, in the meantime, has some interesting new items for Ardeo's diners: lump-crab salad with bloody mary granita and micro celery and artichoke salad with baby arugula and lavender-goat cheese vinaigrette for starters. For main courses, some of the new items are seared duck breast with

UPCOMING

A Roughrider Outpost on The Civilized Potomac

It's a scandal how little Washingtonians consider North Dakota. Think about it: The third least-populous of the 50 states, even its state avenue is quite short. But things are changing for the Roughrider State, which is getting some prime real estate at Georgetown Harbour. Agraria, an North Dakota-based holding company whose purpose is to start up restaurants to provide directly sourced food products from family farmers, ranchers and their cooperatives, will be opening a new farmer-owned dining spot toward the end of May. The company's headquarters is in Jamestown, N.D., but its D.C. restaurant will look very unlike the flatlands of North Dakota. Its interior is currently being crafted by D.C.'s highly regarded design pair Adamstein & Demetriou, famous for the dramatic spaces at Zaytinya, Poste and Bistro Bis, among other stellar spots. Expect meats and pastas, along with specialty produce that meet its "From Our Fields to Your Table" mantra. (MG)

STAGE | MAKE ME LAUGH

ELIZABETH KEMME

WELL, WETTING ONE'S PANTS IS ALWAYS FUNNY: Put down your copy of "Portrait of the Artist" and see what famous Irish authors would do if forced to be eloquent — at gunpoint. In "Irish Authors Held Hostage," Joyce, Wilde and others are kidnapped by a hodgepodge of terrorists, from Islamic fundamentalists to homegrown extreme right-wingers. This literature-lovers' comedy is running through Sunday at Warehouse Theater.

That Old Man Bengal River

→ AFI SILVER unveils a gorgeous new 35mm print of Jean Renoir's first color feature, "The River." Based on the 1946 novel by Rumer Godden, the film tells the story of three young women whose changes and growth are contrasted with the monumental placidity of the Bengal River. Shot in India, "The River" ebbs and flows along with the daily rhythms of life, in all of the women's — and the water's — immensity and triviality. AFI Silver, 8633 Colesville Road, Silver Spring, opens Sat., through April 27; 301-495-6700. (Silver Spring)

LIVE POP-BLUEGRASS | OUTSIDE THE BOX

DANNY CLINCH

DEFINE REVELATION: "Is Nickel Creek bluegrass?" trad folk fans might ask, nervously looking at their fellow banjo enthusiasts for direction. "Yeah, well, sorta. Kind of," might be the uneasy reply. At times loud, thumping and thunderous, at times brooding, grandiose and melodic, Nickel Creek's mutant pop hybrid is so good no one should care what defines "bluegrass." They'll challenge genre notions at the 9:30 Club on Friday.

It's just a gay man looking for monogamy.

Our client lives an accomplished life with friends, travel, adventure and a creative, satisfying business. But what's success without someone to share it with? He's a 50ish, HIV (-), tall GWM with an athletic build and blue eyes. Considered quick-witted and opinionated, he loves to entertain. He is interested in starting a family, so if you don't want kids, this isn't for you.

So, what's he looking for? He's looking for a man with a great laugh and a sense of humor—someone who's willing to try new things. He's looking for a partner with a sense of purpose, who's ambitious, interested and interesting. Physically, he wants someone masculine, lean, athletic, energetic and between the ages of 30 and 45. A mature man who's full of integrity, intellect and curiosity. If you have dreams and the willingness to work toward them, look forward to being a dad and want a loving relationship with a partner who will cherish you, this may be the man for you. So what do you say? To meet the man behind the words, apply today. It's free. For more information, go to
